

Carlos's Journey through Latin America

The length of the line does not correlate to the length of the word.

Carlos traveled from Norfolk (A) a country with two capitals. He then decided to visit Juan Valdez at work in the coffee plantations of (B). Carlos had learned in geography class that coffee grows best in the zone known as the (C). Carlos also wanted to see bananas, a crop of the (D) zone, grow so he flew to (E) landing at the modern airport at Tegucigalpa.

Carlos' friends warned him about the death squads he might encounter in nearby (F). Carlos enjoyed the (G) climate type of Central America with warm temperatures day and night. Carlos next visited the largest city in Latin America (H) with a population of approximately (I).

Next Carlos visited (J), the only "communist" nation in the (K) hemisphere. Geographically speaking, the country is located in the (L) Antilles west of the island of (M). The island of (N) contains large deposits of bauxite whereas (O) and (P) have large deposits of petroleum.

Before heading for home, Carlos wanted to see the gauchos round up the cattle on the (Q) of (R). His teacher reminded him to call the (S) Islands the Malvinas when he was in Buenos Aires. Carlos also traveled the full length of the Panama canal from Panama City on the (T) to (U) on the Atlantic Ocean.

Carlos also wanted to see subsistence farmers at work and journeyed to (V), (W), and (X) in South America and (Y) in Middle America.

On the last leg of his journey Carlos stopped in (Z) to practice his French since it is still a colony of France.

Which three items included in the story best describe life in Latin America?

Create a map showing Carlos' trip.