

After reviewing the Workforce Framework for Cybersecurity I learned it allows for people to choose their career path with specific roles. I personally found Digital Forensics to be the most interesting and a path I would focus my career around. I chose this due to the Law Enforcement aspect. I find it very interesting to identify digital evidence and use it to help solve cases. Another task I find interesting is decrypting seized data and using technical means.

Under Operate and Maintain I found Customer Service and Technical Support to be the least interesting. I found this uninteresting due to the fact it's focused on Customer Service. Compared to Digital Forensics, it seems less of an importance and more of a customer focused convenience.
