Yes, you can spot some fake websites, but you have to pay close attention to the URL, the cost of the product and quality of the images used for the product. Some fake websites that were researched or discovered were PayPal, clothing brands and fake social media sites. I watched this news report on YouTube about fake websites and PayPal and Facebook were two of the main topics of how scammers made a small adjustment to the wording of the website. I also was a victim of a clothing brand scam a couple times where I had ordered three hoodies from this site, two never came and the other one was not like how it was in the picture on the site. This was fraudulent because the quality of the picture was a certain type of fabric and I got a silky fabric where also the words on the fabric weren't the same either.
