

Adedoyin Adeleke

Instructor Emerson-Coyle

ENG 211C

March 6, 2019

Visual Argument

Child neglect is any absence by a parent or other caregiver that denies a child of basic age-appropriate needs and can result in physical or psychological harm. Not giving a child attention and proper care can be detrimental to that child's health. For example, in the case of food, if a parent were to deny their child food, they would starve. Apart from food, it could just be your time and attention. Children love to be around their parents, even if it is something simple like going to the grocery store. Children do not like and should not be casted away. They also, should not be looked at as a burden. Truthfully, I do not think it is fair bringing a child in this world, if you are one hundred percent certain and dedicated to take care of them. It was definitely not the child's choice to be born just to suffer. So many parents take up multiple jobs or even shifts and dump their kids in day care. This typically happens to children of younger ages. From that young age, it sticks with them unto adulthood. Leaving the children with a void, where their memories with their parents should be.

Some may argue that parents may not have the time to be with their children. Times are rough where children are getting more and more expensive to take care of. With finances being tough, it could lead to other resources be scarce, like food. Therefore, leaving the parent to decide on how to try to make more money to keep everyone from getting poor nutrition. Parents jobs then can get in the way of things. They apply for multiple jobs or request more hours to even take care of the child. In other words, the child should also endure being neglected because the parents are working even more.

Understanding why sometimes there is no time to give your children attention, parents must understand it is not safe. It is dangerous to neglect your child because that could lead to children physically or physiologically harmed. Giving your children proper attention and providing for them can go a long way. Parents also must remember, children did not ask to be brought in to this world nor did they ask to be neglected.

Citation

<https://www.psychologytoday.com/us/conditions/child-neglect>

Google Images

