

Amanda Sandoval

09 February 2026

Professor Yalpi

Journal Entry 3

After visiting the Privacy Rights website, it informed me about different types of data breaches from financial to education breaches. After selecting a different topic, it provides readers with multiple resources. It educates readers on how to protect your information or what you have available if you do experience a data breach. I believe researchers can use this information like the reports to survey these results. Also based on these reports and numbers, researchers can take this into their own hands and create an experiment. Researchers can use their own facts and create different research methods to forecast future data breaches. Continually producing research methods can be helpful for future data breaches and giving advice to future readers.