

Mi celebración favorita es Tomatina Buñol. Es un día de finales de agosto. It started in 1945 as almost a riot. However, over the decades it has become a giant food fight. The celebration lasts approximately an hour. By the end, the people and the town are covered in tomatoes. There is a list of rules you must abide to ensure the safety of all participants. I cannot think of a single holiday here in the United States that equates to Tomatina Buñol. My favorite holiday to celebrate with my family would have to be Christmas. Not only do I love spending time with my kids and seeing their faces light up all season, but the lights and decorations are beautiful.
