

There are many differences between the University of Grenada and Old Dominion University. For example, UGR was founded in 1531, centuries before ODU. According to the video, UGR has a mountainous background, while ODU is not far from the ocean/bay. Additionally, ODU is much smaller than UGR. UGR is the only university to have full-time campuses on two separate continents. On the other hand, there are also some similarities between the institutions. Both universities are broken down into different departmental colleges. Furthermore, both institutions open up their cultural and sporting events to the community.
