Journal Entry #15

After watching this video and seeing how the speaker explains his career I think his pathway is very cool. The speaker goes through ways he solves crimes and other methods he uses. The speaker's job is digital forensics and uses a variety of methods not just on a computer. The speaker uses a method of psychology where they try to put themselves into the criminals shoes to determine why they committed the crime and what made them do it. He also talks about information and how it's important to protect people's privacy as he digs through someone's electronics. This career seems interesting and shows how technology seamlessly integrates into current careers!
