When it comes to the NICE workforce framework, the areas I have always had an interest in is cybercrime investigation and digital evidence analysis. I chose these paths mostly because I want to take my cybersecurity degree and put it to use in my current occupation of being a Police Officer. I chose these areas of focus mainly because I have dabbled in them before but wanted to have a better understanding of the process and interment details that come with that line of work.

If I had to choose an area where I am not too fond of going into, it would have to be the design and development style of jobs. My main reason for this is that I prefer the criminal aspects of cybersecurity and cybercrimes. I also don't feel that I have the extreme knowledge on making a system, but keeping one protected I could.
