Secure social media directly relates to Human-centered cybersecurity because it focuses on educating and empowering users to make informed decisions about their online privacy and security on social media platforms, recognizing that humans are often the weakest link in cybersecurity due to their behavior and susceptibility to social engineering tactics like phishing scams and malicious links

ial data and prevent scam activity

Cyber attacks are directly related to Human-centered cybersecurity because a significant portion of successful cyber attacks exploit human behavior such as clicking on phishing emails or making careless password choices, making the "human element" a critical factor in cybersecurity
