Top 5 most serious violations

01

Collecting information about children

Children are the most vulnerable and most impressionable users of the internet and gathering information about them for me is very serious because they cannot really understand how to protect themselves online. Unfortunately malicious people take advantage of this.

Bullying and Trolling

Bullying and Trolling is very serious because of the nature of the internet. The act of bullying is magnified by the global reach of the internet and there are so many perpetrators because of the anonymity and far proximity in which they can bully and troll others.

Sharing passwords, addresses, and photos of others.

Sharing passwords, addresses, and photos is very serious because this is a violation of privacy. Doxing, or revealing an individuals personal address leaves them vulnerable from malicious people that can do harm to them like stalkers.

04

Using other people's internet networks

Using other people's internet networks is very serious because it also violates privacy and an individuals private property rights. Malicious individuals can use others internet network to commit cyber crime and may cause legal issues for the individual in which network was used.

Recording a VoIP call without consent

Recording VoIP call is very serious because it violates privacy. Individuals should have the right to know when they are being recorded. Malicious people can record VoIP calls and use them to extort, harass, and intimidate other individuals.
