Group Reflection 1

In our first meeting, we successfully identified the problem we aim to address: the lack of awareness among the younger generation regarding online risks (Cybersecurity). This is a significant issue, and our group is dedicated to finding a solution that will make a positive impact. Our proposed solution is to develop a public education strategy such as a game designed to impart essential knowledge about online risks to elementary students and beyond. We believe that by targeting this demographic, we can instill crucial awareness and habits early on, fostering a safer online environment for the future. As we move forward, we have outlined some critical questions that we need to address in our upcoming meetings. One of our primary tasks is to find research and academic papers that support our assertion that the lack of awareness of online risks among the younger generation is indeed a problem. This will provide us with valuable context and strengthen our proposal. We will also Identifying potential barriers is essential for planning our strategy effectively. By anticipating obstacles, we can develop proactive solutions and ensure the success of our proposal. After this we will Establish clear criteria for success is crucial. During our next meeting, we should discuss and define measurable indicators to assess the effectiveness of our public education strategy. This will guide our efforts and help us gauge the impact of our initiative. I am excited about the progress we are making as a team, and I believe that by addressing these questions, we can build a strong foundation for our proposal. If you have any thoughts or additional points to consider, please feel free to share them before our next meeting.
