

End-Of-Term Reflection

Outside of being a student at Old Dominion University, I am a part time EMT in the city of Virginia Beach. This course, Cell Biology, relates to the field of emergency medicine by helping me to understand emergencies at a cellular level. I can better understand the mechanism behind the issue which helps me to better treat my patients. Cell biology also helps me to understand the intricacies of the human body in my other course, Human Anatomy and Physiology, which shares how different bodily functions work together. This course has given me the knowledge of the foundational units for all biological subjects.
