Module Three Discussion Board 1 (M3 DB1): ePortfolios ○ Why do you think it's a good idea for people to create personal websites to showcase their writing and other course work? ○

How could such an ePortfolio help you in your future professional or scholarly endeavors? ○

You may also note whether you have created a website using WordPress, Wix, Weebly, Adobe Spark, or another online tool. Why did you create the website? What audience did you envision seeing it?

○ Did you see any examples in the readings this week that really represented what you think you'd like to do with your ePortfolio this semester? Share it with us if so.

My response: I have learned that ePortfolios are important and helpful in showing your growth to others when trying to promote yourself to someone. Creating one is beneficial to you and it makes showing others easier and faster. Having an eportfolio is great way to keep up will all your work and give others the ability to see your work wherever you are in the world. I have made one for myself so I could showcase my work to my many different professors to show them what I am capable of. I have use Word press and Adobe Spark. Those websites are easy and fun to use for beginners making an eportfolio and they give tutorials on how to work the website. I created an eportfolio and adobe spark for my health and literature class. For health I had to make an eportfolio to showcase my community work and turn in papers to explain what I did and why. With Adobe Spark I had to make a fun slideshow about emotions in the stories I read in that class. I enjoyed it because I got to show off my creative side and I got to do a voiceover on my slideshow.
