

The very first certification that an information security professional should be sure to get is the CompTIA Security+ certification. The CompTIA Security+ certification helps to establish the basic and most important skills that a cybersecurity job requires, and after teaching the basics through this certification, other more specialized and advanced certifications can then be obtained. This makes the CompTIA Security+ certification more valuable the sooner it is obtained, making it the best certification to get first. The CompTIA Security+ certification also increases the average salary of those who have the certification, making the acquisition of this certification a no-brainer.

Source: <https://www.comptia.org/certifications/security>