4: I used the command :15 to get to line 15 in the command mode, then I used i to insert the cursor where it was in front of the words. Alternatively, you can use the :s command to replace the text like so: :s/Przemysław Skibinski/devan032 , though this command only works if you are on line 15.

A screenshot of a terminal window on a Kali Linux system. The window title is "demetrius@kali: ~". The terminal displays the Zstd license text, which includes information about the upstream project, excluded files, copyright holders, and the license itself (BSD-3-clause or GPL-2). The text is color-coded: blue for URLs, red for "Files:", green for "Copyright:", and yellow for "License:". The terminal also shows a menu bar with "File", "Actions", "Edit", "View", and "Help". The bottom right corner of the terminal window shows "15,12-19" and "Top".
