

Research

I have not started my research. However, I have had many thoughts on what I would like to research. The oral cavity is a fascinating place, and as we learn how it effects the rest of our body is even more fascinating. I am considering starting my research in saliva testing, and how it can assist our patient's in getting the proper health care they need.