

Taking part in a community by helping with making it better or by just attending community events can help give a individual character. This helps build leaderships skills and the importance of giving a helping hand to the area that helped growth of the individual. Another thing is that it will help with building relationships within the community that could last a lifetime. Peer pressure can also build personality which can be both negative or positive.

