

Journal entry 9:

I got a good score on the social media disorder scale. I believe different patterns are found around the world because the environment definitely does affect a person's way of life and thinking, making social media presence different everywhere. I think the items in the scale are a great way to determine if someone has a social media disorder.