

Hector Gomez

3/21/2022

CYSE 202G

Phishing:

As you can see in the above and below screenshot this is an example of a phishing attack. First thing first it is too good to be true as you can tell just from the subject of the email. Looking at that amount of money is an eyecatcher. On top of that, the email that was sent is very sketchy that is because it is an unusual email address that I have never contacted. It tells me to click a link for potential settlement. Basically stating that once I click it the money is mine. That is an example of a hyperlink, which you should always ignore! Last but not least the caution reports that it is spam because it pretended to be sent from my email.

