

One of the oldest universities in Spain is the UGR (University of Granada), Here are some interesting facts about the UGR that you should know. Do a comparison between the University here and the UGR in Spain. Have you studied outside of the United States? Where? How was your experience? Are you planning on do a study abroad? Explain your answers.

Please read your classmates' entries and comment on at least one of them. This is a great opportunity to create a community and to form learning partnerships with each other.

~

UGR has a much larger campus than ODU's. It is also more traditionally built and looks older than ODU, which is much more modern. Also, UGR has been around longer than ODU. It was founded by Emperor Charles V in 1531. As for ODU, it was founded in 1930. As for the number of students, UGR has more students than ODU with it having approximately 80,000 students while ODU has approximately 24,000. Lastly, UGR plays a larger role internationally than ODU.

I have not studied outside of the United States but I have been considering studying abroad due to cheaper tuition and more opportunities. I also wouldn't mind studying abroad so that I can experience a country other than the United States.