

Isaac Flores

Professor Aslan

Cybersecurity and Social Sciences

27 March 2024

Journal 13

The use of policies can vary in their affect. I think that that the use of vulnerability policies can increase awareness of areas of weakness in the network of a company or business. The use of a vulnerability policy can also prevent future attacks on a company or business and liability issues. Investors of companies can also benefit from investing in a safe company with policies regarding how to safeguard against vulnerabilities as well as making those vulnerabilities be known. According to the article, workers can be considered reluctant to work for the federal government because of drug policies. I find the varying uses of policies and their effects interesting in relation to the article.