

Assignment 1

Pwd- This command displays the full working directory path written to standard output.

Ls- The Ls command was used to display the list of the directory.

Date- The date command is to display the systems date and time

Echo- The Echo command in the linux system is used to display the line of text that is put after the command. That is why it is called Echo because it repeats the text written by the user.