While watching the video it felt more than just a talk. While watching it I understood that it was basically a warning to show that the pictures you use can be used by others in the worst possible way. This video was describing how people can use what they see on the internet to harm others and you too. They use our information to commit cybercrimes or blackmail others without your knowledge and it leads to others having a bad mindset about you and how they view you. They will hack your account and try to get sensitive information they can sell or give to other people. This opened my eyes more because I realized I do the same and need to work on trusting everyone and posting too much.
