

I think one-way social media influences our understanding about cybersecurity is by in a way making it seem more like a whole bunch of pictures and other things instead of it being more about files and also social media paints people in the cybersecurity field to be almost like a computer themselves.