

My thoughts after watching the videos about the 12-year-old cybersecurity expert was that it was kind of in a way motivation because it showed me that if he can pursue his dreams at such a young age I feel as if I have the potential to do the same. Also, when he spoke about the toys can be used a listening device, I never thought about that because you normally wouldn't expect a kids toy to have a chance to be able to hear people's personal conversation and even get a hold of personal information.
