

I think some victims don't report cyber victimization because of the fact that they're probably scared, or they may feel as if they saying something about it there's a chance of it happening again. This is an issue that is slowly occurring too often in the world. I feel as if you've been a victim of cyber victimization you have to speak out about because there will be people who can truly get you the help you need.