I feel as if it is ethical because you never know what someone's true intentions especially in cyberspace. There are plenty of people who would just like to take advantage of other people so having those people in world watching someone in cyberspace isn't a problem. In my opinion, it's one of the few ways to potentially get rid of so much cybercrime.