

Peer Review

Group Members:

Christian Demopoulos:

Christian was a great contributor to the project. He helped with many ideas, specifically those pertaining to the research paper. He was awesome to work with, and I would definitely recommend him. Christian's weakness applies to all of us in the group. That weakness being the fact that we all work different jobs, so we do not have all day to work on the assignments, especially since Christian is in the military. This means that it can sometimes be difficult to align our schedules, but we all made it work together as a group!

Igor Ponkratov:

Igor was an awesome group member too. Igor helped bring new ideas to the group, especially those pertaining to scholarly sources. We really needed to dig deeper into certain scholarly sources during our researching phase, and Igor didn't hesitate to help us brainstorm new sources. Igor also was great with communication, especially if group members had questions. I would definitely want to work with Igor again in future group projects. A weakness would be that our schedules would not align sometimes, but this is to be expected when working different hours.

Olivia Athelus:

Olivia was also a key part of the group. Olivia helped the group generate ideas, especially in the beginning stages of this course when we were brainstorming what product that we should invent. After coming to an agreement on a good product, Olivia helped further develop the topic into something more narrow that we could focus on better. I would definitely recommend working with Olivia again in the future. Again, the weakness of our group was that our schedules did not align all of the time, but all group members persevered through it!