

Engaging in Communities

I get the privilege to live on a diverse college campus. I get to see a good range of people and I get to learn about their cultures. In our assignment where we searched up different universities, I learned how they basically do the same thing as my university. Talking to my Spanish professor in the past, I got to know more about her culture.