Hampton Virginia Aquaplex to Host 2027 NCAA Swimming & Diving Championship

In an exciting announcement on Monday, the general manager of the Hampton Virginia Aquaplex (HVA) and the president of the NCAA announced that the collegiate swimming and diving championship will be hosted in the city of Hampton at its premier competitive aquatics facility.

The NCAA president stated, “The swimming community has been thoroughly impressed by the scale and quality of the events hosted by the Aquaplex, and we are looking forward to bringing our championship to the city of Hampton in 2027.” Followed by HVA’s general manager stating, “We are very excited to host the best college athletes that the country has to offer.” Commenting on the economic impact of the event, the mayor stated, “We are grateful for the Aquaplex and the NCAA for hosting their competition in our city. This event will boost our local economy in ways that we have never seen before, and we will do all that we can to support our businesses in serving the people travelling to and staying in Hampton for the duration of the event.”

From the general manager; HVA will be providing food services for both competing teams and spectators. The facility will be closing its 50-meter competition pool and 25-yard programming pools to the public for the duration of the event. Visitors are welcome and encouraged to attend the sporting event as spectators, though. Due to the anticipated high number of visitors, parking in the main lot will be limited to competition officials, families of competitors, and HVA employees. Spectators are asked to park only in the overflow lot located across the street.
