My experience with my second talk abroad was enjoyable! Like wow, learning how much we had in common was so exciting, and I wish I could say more. I wanted to say “me too!” so often but did not know the french word for it. I felt like this talk abroad; I asked more questions; I wish I knew another way to say, “and you?” I wanted to ask her what made it fun to translate french words to English since she is a translator. We talked about anime that we like; she likes Naruto and Dragonball. I wish I could speak more in-depth with her instead of saying I like it. She also loves to watch criminal minds and law and order, something I like to watch too. I was still nervous to talk like my previous talk abroad, but it was more so because I wanted to express myself more and didn't know how. She was very comfortable and comfy to speak to!
