Movies, TV, and media tend to exaggerate, making it much more dramatic and magical to appease the viewers. Because of that, viewers think that cybersecurity is impossible for the regular person and only geniuses can do it. Meanwhile, cybersecurity is a process that can't be rushed. Each action must be precise and properly fleshed out before it is put into action to minimize the chances of any vulnerabilities. The portrayals of cybersecurity in the media leads to many misunderstandings about what the job is. Expecting dramatic scenes but it is a job that requires discipline, and precision.
