

First paragraph is my own words everything else is copy and paste information or someones blog.

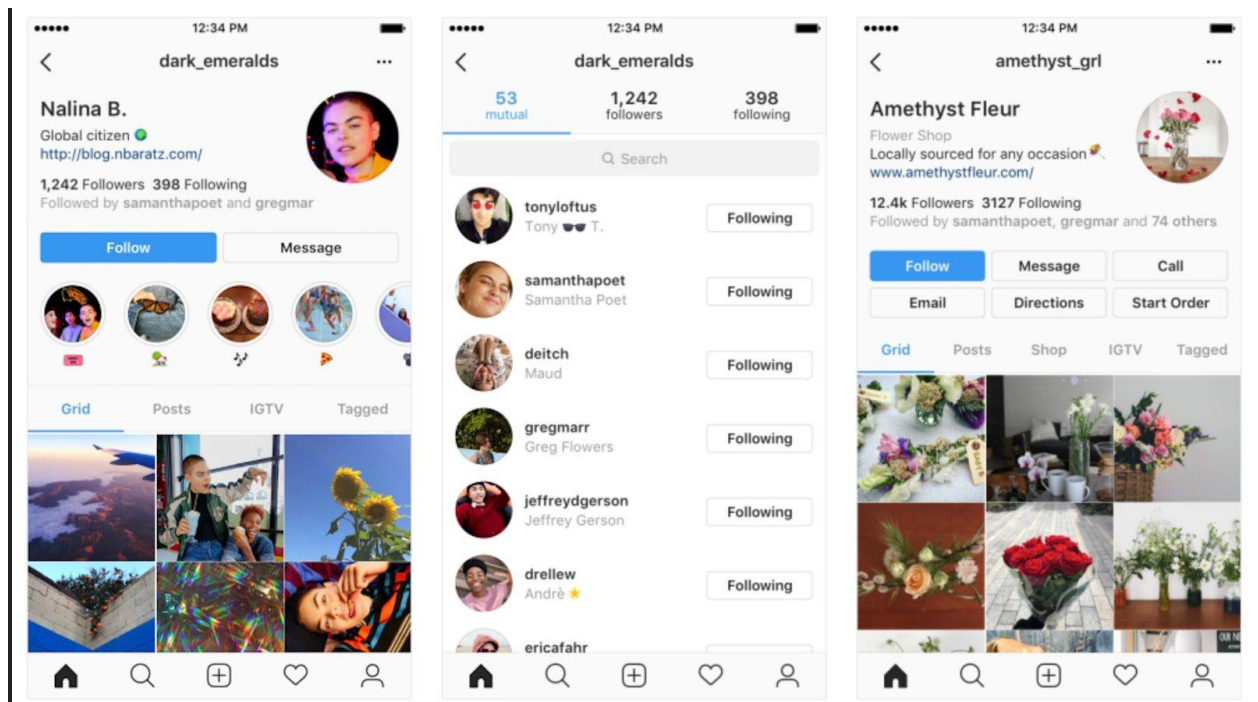

Facebook interface has two interfaces the desktop web and the mobile app. The desktop is more advance than twitter and Instagram because it has news feeds, messenger, marketplaces, events, fundraisers, and many more applications embedded in the interface. The less advanced interface is twitter because it just shows blogs and has direct messaging. Instagram is more advance than twitter because it can host videos, picture and live videos. Twitter can live steam also but it cannot display multiple videos like facebook or Instagram.

Twitter

Twitter has started to roll out a new interface for its web users that includes several key features, like a newly designed emoji button. The most important changes are tiny shortcuts to make tweeting easier. A large, dedicated button in the tweet box makes it easier to add an emoji, an updated trending section appears on the right-hand side of the page, and little aesthetic updates make it easier to see who's involved in a conversation. These changes, alongside the way Twitter's desktop version has condensed from three columns into two, should make it easier to both read and send tweets

Instagram interface Today, Instagram announced a new update coming to Instagram users. The update gets rid of some of the icons on profiles and replaces them with literal text. Rather than icons for each tab, they are now properly labeled with text, which should make them much clearer to those users who might not know what the tab icons mean. Instagram is aiming to make its app easier and clearer to navigate for its users. The new design shifts around the appearance of profiles. The profile icon is now on the right and follower count is no longer at the very top. Otherwise, Instagram is phasing out the post count from the profile view. The description is also placed directly to the left of the profile icon. Instagram is aiming to make its app easier and clearer to navigate for its users. The new design shifts around the appearance of profiles. The profile icon is now on the right and follower count is no longer at the very top. Otherwise, Instagram is phasing out the post count from the profile view. The description is also placed directly to the left of the profile icon

✕

Tweet

Have the new design? Reply with a

Search emojis

Recent

Smileys & People

What's ha

Guarav Kris

Singapore is katie o. @ka

Travelling to

James @jim

The opiod crisis seems to be slowing with govern

Suzie @sweetsuzzie · 7m

Officially a #sneakerhead with these new kicks!

Brie @Skitch_ComedyFan · 8m

I love seeing my favorite comedian's special trend

Follow

Follow

Follow

+ Tweet

Someones blog

Instagram is owned by Facebook and the basics are almost similar in them. Facebook can be used to make friends, upload videos, pics, statuses. Basically it connects people. Instagram is quite similar but in in case of Instagram, sharing is limited to only pictures and videos which can again be liked and commented. Instead of making friend feature like Facebook, Instagram uses Follow method. You can follow your favourite celebs, friends, etc and see their pictures and videos. You can also message on Instagram. Twitter is also similar but in this, you Tweet i.e. 140 characters sentences. You can add pics and videos too. Twitter is basically used to interact with celebrities. People tweet their day—to—day stuff. You can Retweet or Favourite other tweets. Twitter also uses the Follow method. WhatsApp, on the other hand, is a messaging service in which you can exchange texts, videos, pics, documents, voice calls, with people in your contact list.

Someones blog

Facebook allows a person to define themselves more than Instagram and Twitter. It asks you for your details like education, relationships, family, location and workplace. Apart from that it allows it's users to upload and share media of many varieties and types for e.g 360 video and Image. Facebook is believed to be more personal than any other social media platforms. Facebook used to attract teens a lot in the previous years but now it's mostly used by adults.

Instagram is like the Beyoncé of Social media. It rose to fame and acclamation due to its glamorous users. That may not be the actual reason why it's got popular but that's the vibe of Instagram. Its media type is only limited to Image and video. New features of Instagram include Direct messaging and Stories (image and video's disappear after 24 hours). This type of social media platform is hugely popular among teens, celebrities, photographers, travel bloggers and social media influencers.

Twitter is a microblogging platform. It doesn't give the user a lot of options like Facebook does and has limitations for its users on publishing content. Previously a tweet or a post used to consist of 140 characters but now it has been doubled, giving the user to express themselves more (especially without the grammatical errors and shortcuts). Hugely popular among teens and celebrities as well. Users take to Twitter to talk about their day, experiences and their interests.

