The Media's Fake Dilema

Media platforms such as cinema, TikTok, YouTube, etc, have a terrible influence on cyber security and what it is. The way the media portrays cybersecurity is very stereotypical. For example, in a clip within the YouTube video provided, a guy went up to a computer and stole all of the information within a few seconds. That is very unrealistic, and this misconstrues people's perception of cyber security because it portrays very fast-paced tasks that would take much longer than what was portrayed in the video. Another thing the media does is leave out lots of information about the risks and repercussions and how prevalent they are within cyberspace.
