

What Writing Means for an SLP

I would like to describe what writing means for me,
And how important it is when you become a SLP
From professional settings, and future evaluations
Writing clear, and precise will allow proper affirmation

It is something that others will need to understand
So that a different Speech Therapist can give a helping hand
We not only need to assess but will need to vividly describe
The issues our clients are dealing with, so we can understand the why's

We must write with knowledge when we are working to assess
Then we can give our clients what is helpful and what is best
Having written knowledge for what a client truly needs is essential
This helps the SLP teach the client how to reach their highest potential
