

A typical dish in Costa Rica is sopa negra, which is known as black bean soup in English. A typical beverage in Costa Rica is agua dulce. It is made with boiling water or heated milk and a piece of tapa de dulce. These are both very common things to consume in Costa Rica on a day-to-day basis. Although coffee is also a popular beverage choice, agua dulce is often consumed at breakfast.