

In Costa Rica, the women dominate the fields of medical and dental work, teaching, textile work, and hospitality. Men dominate the fields of transportation and communication, mechanics, agricultural work, and electronic work. I am sure these jobs do not come as a shock to anyone reading this. We can see the impact of gender roles in regard to career very clearly in this country, as in most. Women are more likely to dominate fields of hospitality, nurturing, and indoor work. Men are more likely to dominate fields of hands-on work, transportation, and agriculture.
