

Researchers could utilize data breaches to identify common attack patterns or methods along with what targeted industries and the frequent incidents too. Being able to keep up to date using this website in seeing trends of attacks onto places would be deemed to be helpful as they could use these patterns or common methods attacking these targets and just reverse search as of means to seeing how it's performed. Once they found how it's been done they could understand the algorithm of what the attacker's targets might be and beat them to it as they developed a stronger defense to utilize the previous attacks as data.