Week 1 – Journal Entry

The NICE Framework shows many different roles in cybersecurity, but I am particularly drawn to the Investigation and Protection and Defense roles. Investigation appeals to me because of its focus on analyzing things and trying to solve problems using critical thinking. When it comes to Protection and Defense roles, it interests me because cybersecurity is a constant game of cat and mouse, and when you're trying to protect sensitive information, you need to always be one step ahead in your defense game. The least appealing category for me is the Oversee and Govern group. This category focuses more on management and policy which I am less interested in compared to more hands-on technical roles.
