To find out how much the media influences the true understanding of cybersecurity, you can easily tell by typing cybersecurity in google images. What you will see is a whole bunch of cartoons of unethical hackers, digital locks, images of malware, and hackers working in a computer lab. The common thing is the media pushes cybersecurity in the term as hacking when in essence, cybersecurity is the protection of devices and IOT from hackers, malware and viruses. In the video, the movies would use the futuristic aspect including things like robots and hacking and those are the things that shift the average person to correlate hacking with cybersecurity, when there is much more to the subject.
