Title: Evaluation

Author: Robert Williams

Date: 9/25/2019

Type: French poetry reading 9/23

1. Two poets from French-speaking regions of Canada, J. R. Léveillé and Gabriel Robichaud, read their work and translated to English.

2. I learned about the flow of French poetry. I also learned about some of the struggles the Acadian people went through. It was cool to see the authors express the emotions of the people they portrayed in the poems. Both of the poets spoke English very well with only light if any accents.

3. I understood a few words here and there.

4. I could have done more research about the poems that were read and about the Acadian people.

5. The only difficulty I had was understanding what was being read in French.
