TalkAbroad #4

For my final TalkAbroad assignment, I spoke with Mathieu Bonnet. He is from France, but currently lives and works in Argentina as an engineer. The conversation went well I thought. I had a hard time understanding some things, but he was patient and clarified any time I was confused. We talked some about my work and education. I asked him if he prefers France or Argentina. He said he likes Argentina, but their economy is doing poorly at the moment, so that makes it difficult to get by. It was interesting to get that perspective on what other nations are going through during this situation. My prayers go out to all who are struggling right now. It was nice speaking with Mr. Bonnet and I would recommend him to anyone for any TalkAbroad conversation.
