

Journal 8

After watching this video, the way that I think the media portrays hacking is like it really easy. A lot of the films had very superficial things in them. One example is one movies had a CTF event (Capture the flag) and the guy looked at the computer and instantly knew what the code was and how to get in. Another one is when was the movie where the lady had targeted phishing attack toward the dog lover, what got me was how did that machine instantly get the password that is 12 characters with capitals and special characters. The possibilities are way too high. For you to get this in an instant.